Training Based Upon the Ken Blanchard Companies Model

The new workforce demands self-motivated individuals who are willing to handle more responsibility, to lead themselves and others, and to embrace change.

Situational Self Leadership (SSL) is designed for individuals at all levels who want to make the transition from being responsive to being responsible, and to take initiative in idea generation, innovation, and problem solving.

The process provides individual contributors with strategies for gaining more satisfaction from their work - by challenging their notion of leadership, by learning what motivates them, and what builds their confidence, knowledge, and skills. Individuals at every level in the organization can make the leap to peak performance.

Who Should Attend?

Any employee with a leader, individuals seeking to maximize their effectiveness, potential, and power.
